
[b] Hi Guys I'm New To Western Riding! [/b]

Posted by xXBrunetteBabeXx - 2008/07/01 18:43

Hey guys, I'm 18years old and I live in the UK, I am really hooked on western riding yet I've never tried it as a professional sport. My main focus has previously been on classical dressage, and I trained to a high level in that department and now I'm keen to try something new. I am pretty familiar with the aids and tack etc but can anyone reccomend any sites to give me more information on this sport? Thanks guys! xXx

=====

Re:[b] Hi Guys I'm New To Western Riding! [/b]

Posted by rosie - 2008/07/01 19:58

B) hi there and welcome. well you have made a good start by coming onto the forum. have a look at the links page and you'll find lots of info. also come along to shows and watch and meet lots of friendly folk.
rosie

=====

Re:[b] Hi Guys I'm New To Western Riding! [/b]

Posted by curly - 2008/07/02 16:42

WES is usually recommended as the best starting point because it is an all-breed society and holds shows and clinics in many locations and has a list of approved trainers. take a look at www.wes-uk.com There is a calendar of events on the "Whats On" page plus list of area representatives. There are a couple of big shows coming up - this weekend at Hartpury College in Gloucestershire, plus the 3 Day WES Championships at Moreton Morrell, Warwickshire in August. Both of these would be really good shows to visit and to meet people. WES is good value at £25 per year to join. Welcome to the western world!

=====