
Doc Hobby Two

Posted by admin - 2007/10/22 13:37

This thread discusses the Content article: Doc Hobby Two

What a great story! You're a hero.

=====

Re:Doc Hobby Two

Posted by scotty - 2007/10/22 22:02

Agreed. A fantastic tale. Sadly there are too many people out there who still believe that you train horses by instilling fear. The idea is that if the horse is terrified of you, you are more likely to get a result, so bullying, intimidation, abuse and violence are all part of the training regime. Thankfully, more enlightened thinking has shown that frightening horses doesn't actually work, aside from being cruel.

Well done you and thanks for sharing your lovely story. May you enjoy your happy partnership for many years to come.

=====

Re:Doc Hobby Two

Posted by hobbyhorse - 2007/10/22 22:07

Being a 53 year old man people may say I am a bit of a wimp and where horses are concerned I suppose I am, my wife will tell you that I am just passionate about what I believe and I believe that all horses should be given a chance

=====

Re:Doc Hobby Two

Posted by admin - 2007/10/22 22:31

Click the profile button of Hobbyhorse (you need to be logged in) and then click the award tab...

Our first hero award. Congratulations!

=====

Re:Doc Hobby Two

Posted by Joey - 2007/10/22 22:37

yeehah! Congrats Hobbyhorse!

I love Heros! (and the chocolate ones too);)

=====

Re:Doc Hobby Two

Posted by hobbyhorse - 2007/10/23 10:38

Thankyou I would like to think I am not the only one who would do the right thing

=====

Re:Doc Hobby Two

Posted by markm - 2007/10/23 21:52

Super story - well done Hobbyhorse.

Kindness and trust-building has got to be the way to go. It's a great feeling when you build a special bond with your horse

=====

Re:Doc Hobby Two

Posted by misty - 2007/10/27 21:54

Yes, I loved the story as well, read it twice. Lucky to say this is the sort of thing my otherhalf would do. We said yes to our 12 yo QH 'cos we thought she needed a bit more love.

=====