
AQHA Transfer of Ownership

Posted by Katie - 2008/05/09 14:43

Hi

I sent off the transfer of ownership documents for my horse to the states as he is dual registered over a month ago. However I still haven't received anything back from them.:(

I was wondering what other peoples experience was when transferring ownership of a horses and how long it has taken in the past.

Thanks

Re:AQHA Transfer of Ownership

Posted by mejopa - 2008/05/09 15:09

Last year one took over three months for us!

Re:AQHA Transfer of Ownership

Posted by Caz - 2008/05/09 15:44

I've only done one but it was around this time of year, it went through reasonably quickly if i can remember!

You could check your bank to see if the payment has come out, at least if it has you know they've received it.

Re:AQHA Transfer of Ownership

Posted by whitewood - 2008/05/09 18:16

I wouldn't worry.

I have sent of numerous transfer/registrations etc etc and some of them have almost come back by return, others have taken months. I don't think admin is their forte.

If you are worried, email them, they come back quite quickly on that.

I wouldn't worry though

Re:AQHA Transfer of Ownership

Posted by miss_ccb - 2008/05/09 20:57

Hi, i sent off a transfer of ownership before Easter which still hasnt turned up. Rang AQHA a couple of weeks ago to be told it had never arrive, lost in post etc etc. Which caused a major panic on my behalf!! However the payment has just come out of my account so i'm hoping the papers will turn up soon!!!!

Re:AQHA Transfer of Ownership

Posted by Land_Girl - 2008/05/11 18:18

It takes ages mine took about 3 months, took 2 for my new membership card as well.

They arnt very quick with paperwork.

=====